#12 Bruce Yackey battles #95m Cris Muhler for the lead (Starr photo)

(08-11-2012 Dacono CO) Not even Mother Nature could slow down Greeley Colorado's Bruce Yackey when he cruised to his third straight Gillett Vet Late Model main event victory after a long rain delay at Colorado National Speedway. When the rain finally stopped and the track was dried the fans were treated to great racing from the Supermodifieds, Legends, Super Stocks, Late Models and the Figure 8s.

Gillett Vet Late Models

Coming into the Rinnai Night at CNS the Gillett Vet Late Models had a three week break from the action and #12 Bruce "the moose" Yackey had won the pervious two feature events in the division. Yackey's point lead increased at the start of the main as bad luck hit 2nd place in points #31 Rick Smith. The leaders "checked up" in turn two causing a chain reaction which eventually collected Smith causing a fair amount of front end damage. #55 Jesse Runkle also sustained damage in the altercation, yet both Smith and Runkle continued racing minus large portions of their body work. A scary moment for #6 Dominic Ursetta on lap 13 when his right front tire blew and sent him hard into the turn 1 wall. Dominic was uninjured but his day was done. At the halfway point in the race Yackey was out front with #95m Cris Muhler pressuring him for the lead and last year's track champion #74 Dan "the savage man" Savage making his presence felt in 3rd place. When the checkered flag dropped it was Yackey claiming his third win in a row. Muhler held on for 2nd, Savage was 3rd, #7 Adam Deines came in 4th and #84 Matt Zwingelberg filled in 5th.

NTC Logistics Super Stocks
Michael Cox has been the car to beat in the NTC Logistics Super Stock division in 2012 and it didn't take the blue #3 long to jump out into the lead at the start of the 25 lap main event. Cox rode unchallenged until just passed the halfway mark when #46 Lightning Rick Lothert worked his way into 2nd place and began to reel in Cox. The racing behind the leaders was intense as #71 Harry Livermore Jr., #61 John Humphrey, #90 Kyle Patee, #6x Josh Parker and #13 Jason Morris were all trading paint while battling for position. The race ended in dramatic fashion as Lothert dove low on Cox grabbing the win. Humphrey also got by Cox to take 2nd position. Cox hung on for 3rd and Josh Parker took 4th, #90 Kyle Pattee rounded out the top 5.
